Cooperative Education Program

How to Become a Successful Cooperative Education Student

Goal of the Program

The main goal of cooperative education is to combine academic study with practical experience to produce more qualified and experienced university graduates.

Who is Eligible?

After completing your first year of engineering or industrial technology (typically from 30-45 semester hours), you may participate in the co-op program, which allows you to alternate semesters of college study with periods of paid on-the-job training which is related to your major. Engineering majors must have a GPA of 2.5 or better. Industrial Technology majors must have a GPA of 2.75 or better.

‘You can't buy experience like this. But you can get paid for it.’
